BACKGROUND INFORMATION

The Federal Food and Drug Administration (FDA) requires the Department of Public Health (DPH) to enter into a non-financial Long-Term Food, Feed and Cosmetics Information Sharing Agreement (Agreement) to receive or send non-public information from the FDA. Under this Agreement, information related to adverse events is shared with state and local agencies responsible for public health oversight of products, such as dietary supplements and cosmetics, as well as product testing laboratories. In an emergency such as a foodborne outbreak, recall, or a report of a suspect product in the supply chain, DPH must disseminate messaging to the public as quickly as possible. Under this five-year Agreement the exchange of information can provide the quick response needed.
